Let us know more about your organization! (in summary)

The Institute for Educational Leadership is a national expert (NGO) in community-driven leadership development in the intersecting areas of education, health, and employment.

The common thread in our work is supporting community and institutional leaders as they build systems around racial, disability inclusion, and economic equity goals.

Some of your projects toward equitable education – Let us know more about them

The Project .....

- ◆ Broaden and deepen leadership development efforts by building on existing programs and fostering innovation.
- ◆ Offer opportunities for continuous improvement and capacity building for community leaders at all levels and at all stages of their development.
- ◆ Cultivate equitable policies and sustainable practices that foster better results for children, youth, and adults by walking alongside communities through a place-based strategy.
- ◆ Co-create community-driven solutions tailored to local systems and context through our “Community-driven Equity Improvement Process”, using collaborative and adaptive leadership practices to leverage community resources for positive change.
- ◆ Foster cross-sector collaboration, through our local, state, and national networks.
- ◆ Prepare, support, and mobilize local, state, and national leaders to develop equitable, responsive, and effective policies and practices.
